OPEN SPACE TRUST FUND

HUDSON COUNTY DIVISION OF PLANNING

2019

The County allocates $7.6MM in funding for the 2019 funding cycle. This funding improves parks in eleven Hudson County municipalities, allows for the acquisition of a new park, and the preservation of a historic cemetery.

2018

The City of Bayonne used trust funds to revitalize a corner park with new play and spray structures and aesthetic improvements to reflect the surrounding area.

2016 - 2018

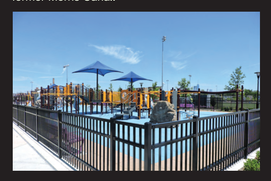

The Town of Kearny received trust funds to build a more resilient Gunnell Oval Recreation Complex.

2013

Stakeholder feedback prompted the "2013 Open Space Reexamination Report" to encourage projects that meet the goals of the program.

2010-2016

The trust fund assisted in both the acquisition and development of Berry Lane Park, over 8 acres of new open space along the route of the former Morris Canal.

2008-2014

Guttenberg & North Bergen used funding to acquire and develop Waterfront Park along the Gold Coast of the Hudson River.

2007-2016

The Apple Tree House received two Historic Preservation grants, completing a historically accurate renovation of the 18th century building in Journal Square.

2005

$1.8MM in grant funding awarded in the first HCOSTF funding cycle.

NOVEMBER 2003

County voters approved the creation of the Trust by a two-to-one majority.

Since 2005, Hudson County has awarded over 72 million dollars in funding assistance for the acquisition of open space, improvements to existing parks, and preserving the county's historic resources to ensure that all county residents have access to recreational and cultural opportunities within their community. Hudson County's steadfast commitment to this mission has been complemented by the exemplary efforts of the County's municipalities.

WELCOME

Coined the "Gateway to the United States of America," Hudson County, New Jersey has a colorful history in the New York Metropolitan Area. From the earliest European settlement in the Garden State through the stories of Ellis Island to the diversity of today's residents, the County has been enriched by the languages, businesses, architecture, music, cuisine, festivals, and practices of its people.

Hudson County is intimately tied to the region's commerce, history, tourism, and transportation. The county has some of the most desirable real estate in the country, in part because of the unique way the County's urban setting hosts open space. A peninsula, the county is surrounded the Hudson River's unparalleled views of the Gold Coast and Lady Liberty and the Hackensack River's calm waters and wildlife-rich marshland. Inland, Hudson County and its twelve municipalities provide a robust network of parks and community spaces. Influenced in the 20th century by the national parks and "City Beautiful" movements, Hudson County parks have revitalized communities and provided the public with space to relax and play.

Plentiful access to transportation and the region's major highways means any destination is easily within reach. With its great variety of different environments, activities, and people, Hudson County has plenty to offer residents and visitors.

COLUMBUS PARK

In the center of the City of Hoboken, Columbus Park has been a place to play and relax for over a century. Designed by noted landscape architect Charles N. Lowrie who served as the Hudson County Parks Department architect, the architectural focus of Columbus Park is a pavilion referred to as the "sun house," an ornately-designed 100-year-old gazebo with an adjacent sunken garden. The park is served by the NJ Transit 126 bus which runs along Clinton Avenue, and the Ninth/Congress Street Station of the Hudson Bergen Light Rail is a quarter mile west of the park.

Recreational amenities include a large playground, a spray ground, baseball, softball, soccer, and football fields, a track, basketball, tennis, and bocce courts, and a horseshoe pit. A walkway around the western edge of the park allows visitors to enjoy the Hackensack River waterfront. The park is served by the NJ Transit 10 and 119 buses which run along John F. Though largely obliterated by past quarrying, it is 150 feet high and can be seen from around the region. The Hackensack River forms the western border of the park. An elevated boardwalk allows visitors to walk along the Hackensack River. The park has ample parking, and the Frank R Lautenberg Station which serves multiple NJ transit rail lines is a short walk from the park. Visitors can enjoy waterfront views and enjoy themselves at the park's many recreational facilities.

JAMES J. BRADDOCK NORTH HUDSON PARK

James J. Braddock Park was established as North Hudson Park in 1910. The park was renamed to honor local resident James J. Braddock, the World Heavyweight Boxing Champion from 1935 to 1937, who was an inspiration to the people of the area during the Great Depression. He was recently honored with a statue on the park's 100th anniversary. The 167 acre park also features the historic former Superintendent building, and the 16 acre Woodcliff Lake. The park is served by the NJ Transit 22, 84, 89, 156, 159, and 181 buses which run along Bergenline Avenue, and the 23 and 128 buses which run along John F. Kennedy Boulevard East. WASHINGTON PARK

Shared by Union City and Jersey City, Washington Park was originally the site of a fairground where visiting carnivals and circuses were staged. In the early 1900s, a park association was founded with a mission to establish a county park on the site. The organization raised dues and petitioned the County for years for creation of a park. Finally, in 1917, the land acquisition agreement Washington Park was finalized. Recreational amenities include a playground, a spray ground, tennis, basketball, and volleyball courts, and baseball, softball, and little league fields. The park is served by the NJ Transit 22, 84, 85, 86, 88, 119, and 123 buses which run along the streets bordering the park, and the Hudson-Bergen Light Rail Ninth Street station is a short distance away.

MERCER PARK

Named for Revolutionary War General Hugh Mercer, the site of Mercer Park was originally part of Curries Woods on the border of Jersey City and Bayonne. Remaining largely undeveloped before the turn of the century, local residents would flock to this area to enjoy the natural scenery and relax. The historic Morris Canal was the border between the two municipalities, running along the northern and eastern sections of the park. The park's development was achieved through Works Progress Administration (WPA), which provided funds to employ local residents to work on the park. The park is served by the NJ Transit 10 and 119 buses which run along John F. Kennedy Boulevard, and the 6 and 81 buses which stop on Merritt Street a block south of the park.

14TH STREET VIADUCT PARK

As the 106-year-old 14th Street Viaduct was replaced in Hoboken, the County improved the land under the bridge with a new park. Vibrant LED lighting, decorative paving, landscaping, and new sports facilities and play areas have provided recreational space for residents in the northwest corner of the city and visitors from around the County. Recreational amenities include a playground, dog run, basketball court, and two small soccer practice areas. The park is served by the NJ Transit 22, 23, 89, and 126 buses which run along 14th Street and the Hudson-Bergen Light Rail Ninth Street station is a short distance away. The replacement of the viaduct has now transformed this underutilized space into an attractive amenity for the residents of northwest Hoboken.

The park includes several scenic bridges, and 4 miles of pathways winding through scenic groves of trees. Recreational amenities include a playground, spray ground, tennis and basketball courts, soccer, softball, and baseball fields, and a picnic area. The park is served by the NJ Transit 30 bus which runs along Kearny Avenue, and the 40 bus which runs along Davis Avenue. West Hudson Park is a beautiful space to relax and picnic in a scenic green refuge in western Hudson County.
